

About the Authors

Daniel Anglin, a 2004 graduate of Rhodes College, majored in music with an emphasis in voice pedagogy. A member of Pi Kappa Lambda and Mortar Board honor societies, he has also been active in the Rhodes Singers and Mastersingers for the past four years. He resides in Memphis.

Millie Worley, a native of Birmingham, Alabama, is a history major and member of the mock trial team at Rhodes College. After graduation in 2005, she plans to attend law school and pursue a career working for the district attorney's office in her home state.

Chris Hathorn, a native of Pineville, Louisiana, will graduate from Rhodes in 2005. He serves as corresponding secretary of the Honor Council and is a member of the economics honor society, Omicron Delta Epsilon. A business and economics major, Hathorn plans to pursue a career in finance.