CODA Fellowships are for students who show potential for leadership in the arts and who will strive to expand the impact of art in everyday life through innovative thinking. Fellowship recipients devote 10 hours per week to further integrate the arts into curriculum and increase arts outreach within Rhodes and throughout the greater community. The primary determination for a CODA Fellowship is based on the ability of applicants to lead in expanding the impact of art, including, but not limited to: art production, curatorship, mentorship, education, activism, organization, management, or the history of art. For more information about CODA, please visit Rhodes.edu/CODA.
