College Pays Tribute To Young Hamilton Graduate Who Died With Mother in Twin Shooting

Police declared this week, they still had not determined whether 44-year-old Leonice Sloane, her 21-year-old daughter, Mrs. David Sloan, and her 21-year-old son, David Sloan Jr., died in a gunman's vengeful attack or in self-defense.

But the tragic news that the body of the daughter was found seven days later in the arms of her mother, who had also been shot, in a vacant lot near the gates of the University of Memphis, has hit the campus like a bombshell.

The daughter, 21-year-old Leonice Sloane, was shot dead on the campus on Wednesday night, and her mother, 44-year-old Leonice Sloane, was found dead in the arms of her daughter on Thursday morning.

The university has set up a counseling center for the students and faculty, and the campus has been on lockdown for the past week.

The recent publication of the British pound and the resultant stock market fluctuations throughout the world has realized a high degree of fear, if not panic, even to those who have not followed this market very closely. The current situation in the money market has been described as a panic, but it is not a panic in the true sense of the word, where a real fear of losing money exists.

Many economists believe that the current situation is due to a lack of confidence in the government's ability to manage the economy. This lack of confidence has led to a flight of capital from the pound, which has caused a downward pressure on its value.

The pound has been described as a "weak" currency, and many suspect that it will continue to decline in value. However, others believe that the pound is simply reacting to a lack of confidence, and that its value will eventually stabilize.

The situation is complex and ever-changing, and it is difficult to predict what will happen next. However, it is clear that the current situation is a result of a lack of confidence in the government's ability to manage the economy, and that it will not resolve itself overnight.

Atlanta Negro Women Support Jeanette Rankin Peace Brigade

The Atlanta Negro Women's Peace Committee has announced its support for the Peace Pledge campaign, which is organized to protest the war in Vietnam. The committee has urged its members to participate in the peace pledge campaign and to work towards bringing about peace in Vietnam.

The campaign is based on the belief that war is not the answer to the world's problems, and that peace is the only solution. The committee has also called for an end to the use of nuclear weapons and for a negotiated settlement of the conflict.

The Atlanta Negro Women's Peace Committee is a group of committed women who are working towards bringing about peace in the world. They believe that peace is possible, and that it is within our reach if we work together towards this goal.

What Kind Of Man Is Braves New Manager Luman Harris?

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — What kind of man is Luman Harris? What kind of manager will he make? Those are questions that have been on the minds of many fans in the days since Harris was named the new manager of the Atlanta Braves.

In his first news conference since being named manager, Harris addressed those questions and more. He said he's a man of faith and family. He's a man of integrity and a man of experience. He's a man of hard work and a man of determination.

Harris, who has spent the last 20 years as a coach and manager in the minor leagues, said he's ready for the challenge of managing in the majors. He said he's excited about the opportunity to lead the Braves and he's determined to make them a successful team.

Harris, who has a 20-year career in professional baseball, said he's been preparing for this moment his entire life.

Grambling’s Dr. Henry Urges Youths “To Participate in Sports”

By MARGARET HEPBURN

REMINDERS...20

Dr. Henry Baldwin, president of Grambling State University, spoke at the annual NAACP Sports Council meeting in New Orleans, where he urged all American youth to participate in sports.

"Sports are an excellent way to promote health and a healthy body image," Dr. Baldwin said. "They also teach important life skills such as teamwork, discipline and respect."

Dr. Baldwin said that sports can help to break down racial barriers and bring people together.

"Sports are a great way to show that we are all equal, regardless of our background," Dr. Baldwin said. "They can help to eliminate prejudice and promote unity."
