Campaign Politics

One of the tactics of politics is to attempt to put their opponents to embarrassing positions publicly. And this is where the effort to put the front runner on the spot. Such a process has wide swings in recent years, suggesting perhaps some new form of political campaigning. George Barany and Robert Kier.

The past few weeks have witnessed the political mailings of the Republican Party, civil rights and related legislation. To those of us who have followed the political scene, it is not surprising that the mailings are increasing during the recent and right issues to join in supporting the issues that are important to the Democratic candidates in civil rights legislation.

This week it is understood that the candidates and their representatives with President Lyndon Johnson in crucial races.

Nixon opponents are therefore acknowledging his lead in the coming election and are now trying to reduce his margins before it is too late.

Go Fly A Kite

This is the time of year to fly kites—although you don't have the time, of course, to help others join in the fun, and time is precious in the world of politics.

Both kite flying and glider flying are efforts to get a feel for the political scene, to sense the wind and how it is moving, while it is still moving. They are quiet, patient, something to be observed, studied and understood. Just as it is with political campaigning.

The boy who knows just how high that kite requires, to preserve it from drying wildly from side to side, can see his city in a nutshell, can see the pattern of his city. He should remain as simple.

The Meaning of Khe sanh

The battle of Khe Sanh is bringing the attention of the United States to the conflict in Vietnam. The Vietnamese people are fighting for their freedom, against a well-organized and well-armed enemy. The allied forces in Vietnam are also working to support the Vietnamese people.

The lack of information about the situation in Vietnam is causing concern among many. This lack of information on military strategy and how the war is being fought is causing concern among many.

The enemy continues to inflit hard casualties on our frontiers and our allies. The Vietnamese people are fighting bravely to support their cause.

It is clear that our government representatives have been working hard to provide us with information about the situation in Vietnam. We make a mistake as a nation in not blocking the North Vietnamese assistance to their cause.

POET'S CORNER

WAR IS MEAN

By virginia G. Sutton (Age 13)

This thing we call war is very mean. We do not mean to fight, but that's what happens. Although something is never seen, it will still remain a dirty trick.

Why can't we all live in peace and quit fighting like every other beast? The things we do to each other is something that one should not want to be told.

The thousands of men being sent to fight in Vietnam just want to be back home. They should not have to do anything like this without our consent.

They should not have to die on our side.

If God sends people to hell, he should send them there for war.

It is unfair to send people to war when there is no reason for it. It is not fair to allow people to die for something that is not their fault.

Why do we have to fight for the things we don't want?

If God sends people to hell, he should send them there for war.

It is unfair to send people to war when there is no reason for it. It is not fair to allow people to die for something that is not their fault.

Why do we have to fight for the things we don't want?

This is the way of war.

Brief Outlines

Major topics for the discussion include:
- The need for peace negotiations
- The impact of the Vietnam War on the economy
- The role of the United Nations in resolving conflicts

- Summary: War is mean. We should strive for peace and not allow our lives to be dictated by war.

The Bronson of a Negro Slave

He was known as the "Goober Eye", and was called by many the greatest scholar of the ninth century. He wrote over 150 books in Arabic, including the famous Kitab al-Bayan wa l-Insan, the superiority in glory of the black race over the white. He died at the age of 90.

Typical reader's note:

I was very interested in the article about the Negro slave who was known as the "Goober Eye". He was a remarkable scholar and his writings are still studied today. It's amazing to think that the black race has such a long and rich history of intellectual achievement.
